1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(a) the invention was known or used by others in this country, or patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country, before the invention thereof by the applicant for a patent.

2. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(a) as being anticipated by Hung.

Hung discloses an elastic member 21 for absorbing vibration comprising a body 22 having a hollow passage and a plurality of grooves enclosing an inner surface and an outer surface. Hung further discloses a projection at an upper portion having a horizontal sectional area which is less than the horizontal sectional area of the body 22. Hung further discloses a base on the lower portion of the body.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 6-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sahs in view of Hung. Sahs discloses the claimed invention except for the plurality of grooves on the inside and outside. Hung teaches an elastic member having a hollow passage with grooves on the inside and outside of the passage. It would be obvious to provide the elastic member 21 of Sahs with grooves, in view of Hung, for the purpose of providing increased flexibility.
